DETAILED ACTION

This action is in response to Applicants' amendment filed on June 4, 2009.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 15, 31, and 32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Taylor et al. (EP 1138268 A1) in view of Zucherman et al. (U.S. Patent No. 5836948).

Taylor et al. discloses an intervertebral implant (Figure 6) comprising a spacer having a body 10. The body 10 comprises a top and bottom with a groove 21 in the top (Figure 6). The groove 21 has a first and second side (Figure 6). The spacer 10 comprises an extension having a first side and a second side and a tab spaced away from the extension such that a concave longitudinal housing 22 is formed in the bottom of the spacer that is orthogonal to the groove 21. A midplane of the spacer extends through both the extension and the tab (Figure 6). A side face of the tab is concave (Figure 7). Taylor et al. further discloses a strap 25 which can be construed from the figures is used for attaching the spacer to a spinous process E when the process E is in the groove 21. Taylor et al. fails to disclose the strap having a first end passed into a first opening on one side of the groove and a second end passed into a second opening on a second side of the groove. Zucherman et al. teaches an interspinous implant 20 having a groove 26 for receiving a spinous process. The groove 26 has openings on both sides (Figure 2) and a first end of a tether 31 is passed into an opening on one side and a second end of tether 31 is passed into an opening on a second side. The tether 31 is adapted to go around a spinous process to maintain the implant 20 in place. It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to construct the device of Taylor et al. with the tether having first and second ends connected to openings on first and second sides of the groove in view of Zucherman et al. Substituting one known means of attaching a tether to an implant for the other would have been obvious to one skilled in the art.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claim 29 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 16-28 and 30 allowed.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 15 has been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
